Dear Mr. Weisberg,

By the time you receive this I hope to have spoken to you on the phone. Please disregard anything here that is redundant.

As you can see, I have located a copy of the November 1941 issue of Click magazine, containing your article "Japan's Mein Kampf." I located the magazine by an Internet search and found a copy at a New York antique store.

I have a couple of questions about this. You told me that most of your work for Click appeared without a byline, yet this article is bylined "Jefferson Hale." If you declined to use a pen name, did Click editors perhaps give you one anyway?

More interesting to me is the included page which has a facsimile reproduction from the Congressional Record. I have highlighted the portion which Congressman Lawrence Connery makes a reference to your work, the article you described to me about the Bata Shoe Company. The conclusion of this item states, "The article referred to appears in the appendix of today's RECORD." I am hoping to track down the Bata Shoe Company article by locating this particular Congressional Record at a nearby Government Depository library. If I succeed I will send you a copy.

Regards,

John
